More and more European component manufacturers are disappearing from the market – but not us!

For 100 years we've been in the business of lighting your way – whether with conventional components in the form of ballasts, ignitors and lampholders or in the field of LED lighting with drivers, modules and optics as well as entire LED solutions such as our industry kit, flat panels and various shop solutions. Intelligent lighting controls as well as surge protection are also part of our range.

Lighting components and systems are simply our thing and make your life easier.

We're continually developing solutions that are built around and focussed on our customers' requirements. Put your trust in us and benefit from durable, reliable and market-compliant products.
